

STRUCK OUT 19 BATTERS

But Williams Was Also
Touched 13 Hits by V. A.

GODDARD WON, 12 TO 6

Visitors Gave Very Ragged Support to Dunlap, Making Eight Errors—
Home Team Bunched Hits
When They Meant Runs.

Goddard seminary won an easy victory over the Vermont academy team of Saxtons River on the campus diamond yesterday afternoon, the score resulting 12 to 6. Williams, who did the twirling for Goddard, made a great strikeout record of 19 men, a record that has never been equalled by any former Goddard pitcher. Though the visitors got a total of 13 hits for 17 bases off Williams, the hits did not occur when they meant runs except in the third inning when V. A. bunched five hits, including a home run by Morse, and in the sixth a two-bagger and a single and an error let in another tally. In the remaining innings not a single V. A. man reached third base.

On account of the schoolmasters' rules, under which the game was played, Goddard had to remove three of its regular players, Lee at short, Craig at center field and Gabeloni their best pitcher. This shook the team up to no little extent but nevertheless they played with only one error.

Dunlap, who was on the mound for V. A. was touched up for ten hits for a total of eleven bases, and they were made when they counted for runs. Yellow streaks developed in the fielding work of nearly all the V. A. team, eight errors being chalked down to them.

Goddard got a lead of five runs in the first inning as the result of two singles and three costly errors by the visitors. V. A. sprung a surprise, however, in the third when they tied up the score by bunting five hits, including Morse's homer, which struck in right field and rolled over the bank, letting in two runs ahead of him. The visitors' last tally in the sixth was made by Cobb who rapped a double and scored on Lowe's single into right field. Campbell made a pretty throw to the plate in time to catch Lowe but Louis muffed the ball.

In the last half of the third Goddard untied the tie and cinched the game by chasing in six runs on singles by Fiske and Richardson and a two-bagger by Williams. In this inning Goddard went to bat twelve times before the third man was put out.

BOB SMITH KNOCKED OUT.

University of Vermont Drove Former Goddard Star from Mound and Won.

Burlington May 12.—The university of Vermont battled Smith, the former Goddard Seminary pitcher, out of the box in the seventh inning of yesterday's game, but before that Tuft's college had forced Malcolm, one of Vermont's freshmen stars, from the mound also. Vermont was the winner by the score of 9 to 5, the home team's swats being more timely. The score:

YOU realize, as well as we do, how wonderful the daring process of invention has been in the past few years. The triumphs of the air-navigators have stirred the enthusiasm of the whole world; everybody is waiting to see what the next step, or the next flight, will be.

There's something spectacular in the boldness of the aviator; makes a man hold his breath to watch one of those fellows. There's nothing spectacular, however, about clothes; if there were you wouldn't buy or wear them; the subject is considered prosaic. You don't expect any "discoveries" or "departures" in men's clothes; just about the "same old sack suit styles" every season. The fact is have been made a new discovery, they've created a radical departure in clothes making; they haven't changed the general look of the sack suit, but they've changed the way of making it in a most striking way.

They call the new model the Shape-maker, and every young man in this town, and every old man who likes smart, snappy clothes style, ought to see this new idea in men's suits. AND WON GAME, 13 TO 9

Cutler Was Not So Effective As Usual

ered anything that looked the least bit snappy or brilliant.

Hayes, a southpaw with a propensity for issuing passes, did the twirling against Spaulding and his erratic work materially aided the locals in winning. He let down seven men and allowed eight hits. Ragged support at critical times also figured in the run getting for Spaulding. From the standpoint of either team, the game was loosely played, but the seminary team piled up error on error with reckless abandon, while the locals were lacking more in life than playing ability.

The seminary touched Cutler for ten hits, but with the exception of second inning, when four safe ones were registered, he seldom allowed more than one in an inning. Fielding features were noticeable by their absence, and what little ginger the locals displayed was with the willow. Smith was the all around strong man with the willow and clouted out three safe ones, one a two-bagger. Williams also tickled the uncertain Hayes for a pair of bingles.

Spaulding stole bases whenever the smallest chance offered and usually successfully. Sargent, the seminary backstop, had a weak wing, while the delivery of Hayes was such as to allow a half-way and lead from base to base. Smith pilfered sacks to the extent of six and with Maiden, managed to pull double steals on two occasions. The record of seventeen stolen bases was not the least important factor in Spaulding's easy victory.

Montpelier seminary started the scoring in the opening round, when Carpenter leaped a two-bagger against left field and sauntered in on Sargent's slam for a pair of sacks. By bunting four hits in the second, three more were added. The last two came in the sixth. Greenwood hit safely to right, stole second and tallied when McKinley sent another safe on to right. A wild throw and a miscue by Smith allowed the latter to cross the rubber for the seminary's last run.

Spaulding started in to put the contest on ice in the very first inning by teasing four passes and a pair of safe ones. Each inning thereafter saw at least one run tallied until the seventh, when the first three men up went out in quick succession. With the score standing 9 to 6, the locals again donned their batting togs in the eighth and added four to their already sizeable collection. Singles by Ogston and Cutler, wild throws and much fumbling, brought about the addition.

The game was lacking in so many features that to hold the interest of a crowd that little need be said as to the individual work of the teams. The scores

GETS DECISION OVER MURPHY.

Knockout Brown the Aggressor From Start in 10-Round Bout.

New York, May 12.—In a rushing ten-round bout Knockout Brown of New York, outfought and easily won the popular decision over Tommy Murphy of Brooklyn at the Whirlwind Athletic club of Brooklyn last night. The tow-headed little fighting Dutchman, as Brown is called, was the aggressor from the start while Murphy fought a heady fight he had not the strength to carry his skill to an advantage.
